Escalation levels

Every report opens at level one. A report is raised to level two when it blocks a customer from working, and to level three when it affects more than one customer at once. Escalation is a judgement the duty engineer makes and writes down.

What each level owes

- Level one is answered during office hours.
- Level two is answered within the hour, every day.
- Level three wakes the on-call engineer.

Response targets

Level	First reply	Resolution
One	Two working days	Ten working days
Two	One hour	Two working days
Three	Fifteen minutes	Same day

The targets are measured from the moment the report is filed, not from the moment somebody reads it.

Who to call

The duty roster lives in the team calendar. Outside office hours the on-call engineer is the only person who may change a level three, and the change is recorded in the incident.
